Helping Seniors Stay Independent Since 1952
Dieter F. Uchtdorf, a German aviator wrote, "Gratitude can transform common days into thanksgiving; turn routine jobs into joy; and change ordinary opportunities into blessings."

There is always, always, always something to be grateful for and I am blessed to find that my own cup runneth over. I am blessed to be able to be the caregiver for my parents who are both in their 80's and still on this earth to share my day-to-day life. I am blessed to work with people who care deeply about others and work each day to improve the lives of those we touch. I am blessed that those who have more are willing to support our mission so we can provide support to those who have less. I am blessed with smiles, hugs, warms hands cupping mine in gratitude. May each of you see the many blessings in your life and celebrate all that is good in the world during this Holiday Season.

Happy Holidays to all!

Exercise can strengthen your body and improve your mood while relieving stress. Just 30 minutes of exercise a day, five times a week, can make a big difference in your health. Remember to talk to your doctor before beginning any new exercise routine.

Try being more active with these tips:

1. Have a plan: Set a realistic fitness goal, and schedule time in the week for exercise.

2. Start slow: Start by walking for a few minutes each day, and slowly build up to your goal. Speak with your doctor about what type of exercise is right for you.

3. Wear the right gear: Comfortable clothes and the right footwear can help prevent injuries. Also, wear sun protection and a helmet for activities such as riding a bicycle.

4. Add exercise to your routine: Any physical activity can count as exercise. Consider getting off the bus one stop earlier and then walking, or taking the stairs instead of the elevator.

5. Have fun: Do the things you like. If you’re a baseball fan, play catch; if you’re a soccer fan, kick the ball around.

6. Exercise together: Enjoy a day of games in the park with your family instead of going to the movies, or meet friends for a walk.

Together with exercise, regular checkups with your primary care provider can help keep you healthy. An annual exam with your PCP is one of the benefits offered through Fidelis Dual Advantage plans. They can meet with you in your home, answer your questions, and help you find the coverage that's right for you. Caregivers...don’t let Holiday Stress get you down!

The period of time between Thanksgiving and New Year’s is one of the most stressful times of the year for caregivers. During this time caregivers are involved in many holiday activities that take up additional time and add additional responsibilities to a caregiver’s already packed life. Family may be coming to visit and the weather “is ‘iffy.” Many things can get disrupted during the holidays such as work and family schedules and care routines that enable caregivers to keep all the balls in the air. It’s no surprise that caregivers say they feel overwhelmed, out of control and out of patience during the holidays...they are!!

Nothing can stop the disruptive impact that the holidays have on a caregiver’s life, but planning for the physical, emotional, and fiscal upheaval that comes with them can definitely help caregivers survive them.

Here are a few strategies for weathering whatever the “festive season” throws your way.

Make a holiday to-do list/calendar Figure out which activities you should do and which ones you can delegate.

Put together a support network - of family, friends, community agencies and service providers – and get comfortable delegating.

Learn to say no - This isn’t selfish, it’s self-empowering. If you don’t, you and the person you are caring for will be so exhausted you won’t be able to enjoy things.

Don’t aim for perfection - Be flexible and when you need to, change your expectations to fit a situation. That way, you aren’t disappointed or guilt-ridden... and you actually gain the time and the energy to participate in things and enjoy them.

Ask for help! - Don’t try to take on all of the burdens of caring for your loved one and preparing for the holidays. Something as simple as asking a neighbor or relative to stay with your loved one for a few hours while you get some shopping done can make all the difference between a calm and a stressed-out holiday.
Are You Eligible for Medicare and Medicaid?

Here's What You Should Know

Some people qualify for both Medicare and Medicaid. Medicare covers seniors age 65 or older, and those under 65 with certain disabilities. Medicaid helps people who have a low income pay for their health care costs. If you qualify for both, you are “dual eligible.”

Health plans for dual eligibles, such as Fidelis Dual Advantage, offer one point of contact for your coverage and make it easier to use your benefits. Here are three important facts about dual-eligible plans:

1) Are available year-round
   You can sign up in a dual-eligible plan year-round. If you’re already a member of one of these plans, you can select a new plan quarterly. People with Medicare alone can sign up in new plans only once a year or during certain life events, such as when they turn 65 years old.

2) Help you avoid gaps in coverage
   Sometimes, Medicare benefits don’t cover all the care you need. This means there is a “gap” between the care you need and the care that is covered. If you had a gap, you would have to pay out of pocket. Dual-eligible plans can use your Medicaid benefits to fill such gaps. By filling these gaps, you pay less for the care you need.

3) Can offer health support from Care Managers
   Some dual-eligible plans offer help managing your health. Care Managers could help you coordinate the care you receive. This way, doctors work as a team, which can help you be healthier. They also can make using your insurance easier, and can help you find resources in your community.

Did you know there may be hungry seniors living just two doors away from you?

How do I know this? Because there are struggling seniors in every neighborhood, but you would never know it. They walk along, sometimes with a cane or a nice hat, keeping up appearances. But underneath, all is not as it seems.

Meet Sam and Maria, a lovely couple in their early 90’s who are loving grandparents and live on their own in Albany. They find pride in being independent, but have no pension (Sam is a former businessman, and Maria, a talented artist) and sometimes find it hard to get by.

Several years ago, Maria took a fall and broke her neck, making cooking and other household tasks difficult and threatening their independence. That’s when they began receiving home-delivered meals from Meals on Wheels. At first they received only one meal per day, which the couple shared. Soon their Meals on Wheels driver realized that in order to meet their basic needs they each required a meal, and arrangements were made for Sam and Maria to receive 2 meals a day. Now their Meals on Wheels driver, Tony, arrives every day around 11:30am with hot, delicious meals and a smile. Sam and Maria both appreciate that Tony not only delivers the meal, and a shared love for Italian music, but also makes sure that they’re ok. Sam says it has become his favorite time of day.

Sam and Maria are a typical example of our community’s valuable, vulnerable adults who receive nourishment and a friendly visit, which is good for them and for the neighborhood!

We deliver meals to hundreds of older adults like Sam and Maria every day all over the Capital District. Who knows? Maybe someday someone in your family will need our help, too. And we want to be there for you and your family, just like we are there for Sam and Maria.

We need your help. Your $100 donation will provide nutritious, home-delivered meals for Sam and Maria, and many of our older neighbors. Your generosity truly makes a difference.

Wishing you and yours a warm and wonderful holiday season!

Thank you,

Todd Davenport, Senior Services of Albany Board President
